

DON'T VOID THE WISCONSIN DO-NOT-CALL LAW. Due to my mother's health conditions I had no choice but to take every call that came to my residence. Caller ID, voice mail, or just ignoring the phone were not options. And a half dozen times a day I'd be interrupted by an unwanted solicitation. Once Wisconsin's Do Not Call was in place, the unwanted phone calls stopped. I am highly suspicious that the Federal Government's action is simply a ploy by this business-friendly administration to weaken an effective law. I'll wager that if the Wisconsin law is superceded the calls will begin again. And I promise to remember who thought business needed more ways to push me to spend money. Isn't it ironic that on the one hand Americans are faulted for not saving and on the other the administration sets a stunning example of running up debts and enables business to employ countless ways to take money from the citizens! DON'T VOID THE WISCONSIN DO-NOT-CALL LAW.
